

Getting back to work after a Trade Related Layoff

Trade Adjustment Assistance Benefits and Services

Overview & Petition Process

The Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) Program is a federal entitlement program that assists U.S. workers who have lost or may lose their jobs as a result of foreign trade. This program seeks to provide adversely affected workers with the opportunity to obtain the skills and credentials, resources and support necessary to become reemployed.

The first step to receiving TAA benefits and services is to file a petition online or by mail with the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL). Petitions are available online and may also be obtained at American Job Centers. The petition may be filed by:

- Three or more workers in the same firm or subdivision;
- The worker's employer;
- A union official or other duly authorized representative of such workers; or
- American Job Center partners (including state workforce agencies and dislocated worker units)

Upon receiving a petition, DOL initiates an investigation to determine whether the circumstances of the layoff meet the group eligibility criteria established by the Trade Act of 1974, as amended. DOL provides notification of certification or denial.

Program Eligibility

A petition identifies a worker group at a specific firm or subdivision and covers all individuals in that group.

A group of workers may be eligible for TAA if their jobs are lost or threatened due to trade-related circumstances as determined by the DOL certification. Circumstances may include:

- Increased imports;
- A shift in operations to certain countries;
- Supply or downstream production to certain companies with TAA-certified workers.

The latest information regarding program eligibility is available at www.doleta.gov/tradeact/.

The certification determines group eligibility to apply for TAA benefits and services.

Workers in a certified group will be notified by their state, at which time they may apply for individual eligibility for benefits and services.

Once a worker has been notified, it is important to maintain contact with the local American Job Center to meet required deadlines, ensure proper understanding of the rules, and receive guidance on benefits and services available to workers.
